Bernard A. Krooks has been selected as the next president of the Special Needs Alliance (SNA).

Krooks, who is a partner in the Littman Krooks law firm in New York City, is a past president of the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys (NAELA) and has served on the NAELA board of directors.

"The SNA and our members act as a resource to those in the disability community," Krooks said in a recent appearance on the television show "Good Morning America." "As a not-for-profit organization comprised of attorneys who can join the SNA only by invitation, we are in the best position to help families with these complex issues."

Krooks takes over the president position from Andrew H. Hook, of the Oast & Hook law firm, in Portsmouth, Va.
