Martin W. Enright is a partner in the corporate and securities department at Littman Krooks LLP. Marty has over 25 years experience representing major financial institutions, closely held and publicly traded businesses, investment fund managers, investment banking intermediaries, individual investors, executives and management groups, and entrepreneurial ventures. His experience covers a broad array of securities; capital markets; venture capital; private equity; mergers, acquisitions and divestitures; joint ventures and strategic alliances transactions, as well as general corporate and business matters.

Marty has been central in helping develop Littman Krooks' practice in the area of secondary market securities transactions, has been involved in cutting edge transactions relating to securities of Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Palantir, Lyft and several other issuers and has dealt with most of the major players in the secondary market space including premier Silicon Valley venture capital firms.

Marty has also served as founder and principal of several investment partnerships and similar vehicles, and was Senior Vice President and General Counsel of a Nasdaq traded high-tech company. Marty began his career with the distinguished New York firms of Seward & Kissel and Schulte Roth & Zabel.

Marty is an honors graduate of Hofstra University, where he was a member of the varsity football and lacrosse teams, and of Boston University School of Law, where he was a Notes Editor of the Boston University Law Review. He lives in New York with his wife Christina.
